In 1882 the United Kingdom produced 1,675,649 tons of Bessemer steel and this country produced 1,314,084 tons. In 1892 the British product had fallen to 1,060,810 tons, while that of the United States had risen to 4,100,973 tons. That is, Free-trade has been discredited by Protection in the iron and steel trade.

Secretary Herbert says that he does not favor making changes among the mechanics of the Navy Yards because of politics, and would follow the practice of his predecessor in this respect.

INTEMPERANCE DECREASING.
Philadelphia Press.—The decrease of drinking is apparent in all classes. Politicians drink less than they did twenty years ago, at least in the North. Commercial travelers drink less than they did. The old habit of taking customers out to "see the town," and to look through a glass more or less darkly, has almost disappeared. Americans still drink. Bars are numerous. There is still enough drunkenness to be disgraceful too often, but there is far less than there once was. Much less is drunk at public dinners and it has no longer become an awkward or noticeable eccentricity for a man never to drink.

Wall Street seems to have again recovered its wonted equilibrium. People there, in the language of Matthew Marshall, "are beginning to remember what they ought never to have forgotten—that the United States is not on the verge of bankruptcy, and that with over $100,000,000 in gold in its Treasury it is able to meet all obligations likely to be presented, legal tender and silver bullion notes included." The man is not yet born who will ever see Uncle Sam's notes go to protest. The only discouraging feature of the present outlook is the probability that the United States Senate in the next session of Congress will be more favorable to free coinage than it was in the last session.

The churches of New Jersey are holding interdenominational meetings and passing denunciations resolutions on the gambling issue, passed by the late legislature. This relieves their feelings but doesn't repeal the obnoxious law a cent's worth. At one of these meetings Rev. J. L. Scudder of Jersey City expressed a good deal of truth in a few words as follows:

If we did one-twentieth as much shouting before election as we do after we might accomplish something in the interests of righteousness. Now let us stop castigating gamblers and their lackeys and turn round and chastise ourselves. We need it more than they do. Should not the humiliating experience of the last three weeks hammer into our thick but pliant skulls the importance of combining our forces and voting for good men, irrespective of party?

THE PENSION OUTLOOK.

Edward Atkinson, who has been furnished by the Pension Office with all the data at its command, takes a more cheerful view of the situation after examining them. The conclusions reached by him are that the total expenditure for pensions during this calendar year will not exceed $180,000,000, and for 1894 $196,000,000, about one-quarter of that amount being for back pensions—the first payment—and the rest the regular pension bill. By the close of 1894 Mr. Atkinson estimates that all claims will be finally adjudicated and the number of pensioners will begin diminishing at the rate of thirty-five in the 1,000. Hence he is of the opinion that the pension expenditures for 1895 will be but $148,000,000 and for 1896 $141,000,000.

Should these figures be correct, the only trying year will be 1894. After that is over the revenues will be ample. Their accuracy depends in part on the future management of the Pension Office. One of the ways in which the pension appropriations are increased is by the granting of pensions. It cannot be forgotten to what a frightful extent this was carried on during the brief administration of Corporal Tanner, when nearly every one who applied had his pension raised. Taking three months of last year, being not over 50 per cent. If extravagant increases are made under the new administration of the office, Mr. Atkinson's figures will be faulty.

It is estimated by the Commissioner of Pensions that $15,700,000 more will be paid on the rolls during this year and next, and that the total number December 31st, 1895, will be 1,171,918, after which the number will decrease steadily. If he is correct in his assumption, then one may have some confidence in Mr. Atkinson's statements about the comparatively small appropriations of 1896 and subsequent years. If the Commissioner is as much out of the way on this occasion as he has been on others, then the conclusions deduced from his data are worthless.

PREMIUMS FOR PATRONS.

A Word to Those Who Haven't Understood What They Read.

When a merchant offers a premium to every person who buys $10 worth of his goods, it applies to persons who purchase after the premium is offered. It is not a reward to those who have bought even ten times $10 worth at some previous time.

When a grocer gives you a goose on the number of loaves in a bottle for every $1 worth of goods you buy, he doesn't mean that the man who bought $1 worth from him five years ago can win it and claim five cents. It is for the customer who buys from him after the offer is made.

When a newspaper publisher offers premiums for new subscribers, he doesn't mean old subscribers. If he did he would say so. The LEADER gives value received to every one of its patrons. They are furnished with a larger paper, containing more reading matter than any other local publication, and at the same price. It has followed the plan adopted by nearly every other paper in the United States of giving premiums for NEW subscribers, in one instance it is more liberal than any we know of, for it gives George Eliot's complete works to every old subscriber who renounces and subscribes for the LEADER.

Surely, if a farmer was to give us a fine ham it would be a trifle cheeky if we were to ask him to send it to us by express and prepay the charges.

Now is the time to subscribe!

I have never had any more since."

Bowling Green is making extensive arrangements to have itself ceded by the Irrevocable San Jose, who goes there to begin a ten days' meeting on April 3, says The Louisville Times. The capitalists who are to run the casino, business will boom and the whole community will be in the midst of an epidemic of religious jargon. It is said that the casino will put its members for a few days, the merchants and hotels will reap harvest, the railroads will get richer, San Jose will be comfortable and everybody will be satisfied, including those who go to see a show and care not for its religious or moral character.

P. S. MYERS has received the appointment of Postmaster at Mt. Olivet.

The Job Didn't Suit.

R. D. Wilson of Vanceburg has returned home from Washington. He went there to secure an appointment as Special Agent at Seal Islands, Alaska. He died his application, accompanied by a number of strong references, and among them was to call upon a special attorney to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is said on its merits. This assertion is supported by the fact that he had been a good show of getting there, but when he learned where he would be stationed, and that he could not get there, he refused him the job. He concluded that the job would not suit him, and so he withdrew his papers, saying that he had changed his mind and did not want a Government office any more.

The Aberdeen Public School closed yesterday for the vacation. There were three graduates—Miss Blanche Riddle, Miss Nettie Heaton and Will Bradford.

Why Not Use the Best?

"There are numerous preparations in the market for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Among them we wish to call your special attention to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is sold on its merits. This assertion is supported by the fact that it has been a preparation of a similar nature. I hear nothing but praise from customers who have used it." The above is what Eugene P. Unanue, the leading druggist of Bethlehem, Pa., says in a circular to his customers. He has sold at retail over one thousand bottles of this remedy. It is a remedy of the highest quality and without equal. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use is what makes it popular. For sale by Power & Reynolds, druggists.

JOHN HELMER was granted license in the County Court yesterday to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors at his place of business, corner Market and Front streets.

The tariff question is supposed by many to be abstruse and difficult, a labyrinth of facts and figures to which none can find a clue except the few who can give it long and patient study. This is a mistake; the principles involved are plain and simple. It is thought of as a dry matter of dollars and dimes in the National Treasury, and of profit and loss to great capitalists; or as a soulless thing galvanized into life now and then as the war-cry of a political campaign. It is full of vital interest and comes home to the daily life of the people. The national economy and social science should be more studied. Surely what pertains so closely to the peaceful industries which so largely fill our time should be as well understood as the poor quarrels of old kings with their ministers or mistresses, or the wars that have wasted the strength of the human race.

A family pays special regard to the interests of its own members, while not oppressing or abusing others; a Nation is a great family. A family earns its own expenses, or more, or decays; a Nation sells as much as it buys, or decays. This is "the balance of trade." When one can show how a family can earn $500 and pay out $1,000 yearly, and still prosper, we may see how a Nation can export $500,000,000 and import $100,000,000 yearly and not grow poor.

PROCEEDINGS have been instituted in the Lexington Circuit Court by Hiram Burck and others against Dr. Sanford Price and others to break the will of Miss Jane Williams, now lately deceased. Dr. Price, in return for his many kindnesses to the deceased, was left the entire estate, amounting to $15,000, while the lady's relatives were cut off without a cent.

A SCANDAL

Affecting Members of the Behring Sea Commission.

Maj. Halford Will Likely be Recalled From His Present Position.

It is Claimed that the Staff of the Commission was Ordered to be Paid Large Amounts Daily Over and Above Their Regular Salaries.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Secretary Gresham, with cooperation of Secretary Carlisle, has brought to light a scandal affecting members of the Behring Sea commission now in session at Paris. It is probable that Maj. Elijah J. Halford will be recalled from his present position as pay disbursing officer of the Behring Sea commission unless he consents to certain material changes in the condition of affairs as Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle find them. Moreover, it is probable that the services of ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster, who is now serving as agent for the Behring Sea arbitrators, would be dispensed with if his recent high position as a cabinet officer did not in some measure protect him from too harsh criticism and too summary action.

Secretary Gresham's attention has been brought to the subject by his investigations into the present status of the Behring Sea question. Secretary Carlisle's attention was also directed to the subject because, as head of the department, he was obliged to pass upon certain payments of money, which are now the subject of disclosures.

The two secretaries began to consult together and found that their investigations led to the same conclusions. Then the records were searched. They disclosed that Secretary of State Foster ordered the payment of $15 a day to Maj. Halford in addition to the regular army pay of $15,000 a year. The additional $15 a day, which is made a charge against the state department, is more than the daily pay of a member of congress, as the latter receives only $14 a day and does not enjoy a regular salary from the war department in addition.

The army pay of Maj. Halford added to the state department pay would make about $8,075 per year. It is not disclosed just what sum Secretary of State Foster directed to be paid to "Agent" Foster, of the Behring Sea commission. The records of the two departments show, however, that the most if not all of the staff of the Behring Sea commission was ordered to be paid large amounts daily over and above their regular salaries. One of these officials is Mr. J. Stanley Brown, who married a daughter of the late President Garfield. Mr. Brown is on the staff of the Behring Sea commission at $15 per day. But the records of the treasury department also make certain investigations of sea life, for which he is drawing pay at the rate of $100 per day. Thus Mr. Brown receives $25 per day, which is $9,125 per year, or more than the pay of a cabinet officer.

There are seven or eight other officials who are drawing salaries ranging from $1,500 to $5,000 per year. Secretary Gresham has been astonished and disgusted with what he has found and this feeling in that regard is fully shared by Secretary Carlisle.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 1.—In an interview Friday concerning the Behring Sea scandal at Washington, ex-President Harrison said that he knew nothing of the affair. He ventured the opinion, however, that upon investigation the matter would be found satisfactory to the government. He said: "Gen. Foster was employed by Mr. Halford at what I do not know. All I know is that Gen. Foster has done a noble work. About the other charges I have nothing to say as I am ignorant of the facts."

The Cherokee Strip Treaty. TALEQUAH, I. T., April 1.—A bill of ratification to the amended treaty opening the Cherokee strip was introduced in the national council and was drawn by Congressman Peelle. It provides for the ratification of all changes made by congress. The treaty is generally favorable and will undoubtedly pass if the appointment at Watts of Postmaster Midlow is withdrawn. Unless that is done there will be no sale of the strip. The council took no action Friday on the special message of Chief Harris calling a grand council of the five civilized tribes. The true inwardness of this action is the bitter opposition of the Cherokees to the allotment and statehood plan to organize the five tribes against the Cherokee Nation.

They Protest Against Thomas. KANSAS CITY, April 1.—A special to the Star from Topeka, Kan., says a secret meeting of about thirty friends of Harry Garvey, Democratic candidate for the Topeka post office, was held last night and it was agreed to flood President Cleveland with protests against the appointment of Harry Garvey. The protesters, who they declare, never voted a national Democratic ticket in his life. By Friday night the president will have received more than 100 telegrams protesting against Senator Martin's candidate for the Topeka post office.

Treasurer's Bondsman Dead. OMAHA, Neb., April 1.—Nebbraska began suit in this city against ex-Treasurer John F. Hill and bondsman to recover $253,365, alleged to have been collected by Hill and not turned over to his successor. The suit will result in the failure of the Capital National Bank of Lincoln.

WITH A MADMAN

Thrilling Struggle on a Chicago Hotel Roof.

Strategy Alone Saves the Life of George Doyle.

The Manic Trio to Throw Him From the Roof to the Street Below—An Appeal for Help—They Give Him a Chance to Escape.

CHICAGO, April 1.—With every nerve and muscle at the highest tension, Geo. Doyle fought with a maniac 250 feet in the air, Friday, and only by a bit of clear strategy and being thrown to the ground by the madman.

It was 2 p. m. when Robt. Gedney and Doyle stepped on to the roof of the Great Northern hotel to look out over the World's fair city.

The two had met in the lobby of the hotel, when Gedney, a Philadelphia man who has been at the Great Northern for a week, informed Doyle that he intended going to the Masonic Temple observatory to look at the tower. Doyle lives at the Great Northern, told the Philadelphia that a good view could be had by going on the roof of the hotel. He proposed to accompany him and in carrying out the proposition took the last step that came near sending him to eternity. When the two were on the roof Doyle began pointing out the various buildings that rose on all sides. Away off to the south the white peaks, towers and domes of the white city could be seen, and around them from a score or more of chimneys came the smoke that created a cloud, through which the wagons and cars on the streets below could be only indistinctly seen.

Gedney took hold of Doyle's hand, and going to the Dearborn street side of the roof looked directly down at many men and women hurrying along the pavement. The grandeur of the whole scene was too much for the young Philadelphia's mind. He stepped back from the Dearborn street side of the roof and, as if he considered the whole thing a joke, laughed most heartily. He threw his arms around Doyle's neck and took him across the roof in a merry dance. All this astonished the Chicagoan, but not until later did he realize its meaning. Suddenly the manner of Gedney changed. All the demons of hales seemed to be working on him. Doyle noticed the change come over his face in wonder. Before he could realize what was being done Gedney caught him and threw him violently on the roof. The Chicagoan shouted: "Get up here, man, I'm going to throw you over the side."

Then he chuckled: "Ha, ha, you'll not keep me keeling somersaults on the way down to the ground; won't that be fun though!"

Doyle now knew in what a perilous position he had been placed. Gedney grasped him and the two wrestled a moment, but not until later did he realize that comes in the place of departed reason.

The tactics employed by Doyle were to keep as far as possible from the edge of the roof over which, he was now satisfied, the maniac intended throwing him. Yet every moment the two men were getting nearer and nearer the edge, and Doyle, changing his method, concluded to use his brain against the maniac.

"Wait a moment," he said, "before you throw me over give me a moment for prayer." The maniac stood still for a moment, then released Doyle and stood directly upward. Suddenly he dashed toward the settle and ran down the stairway out of the danger that threatened him. The hotel people were informed of the trouble and the house physician took the maniac in charge. With absolute quiet he will be all right in a few days.
